Lives & works in Austin, TX

I grew up in Georgia, Minnesota, Missouri and Texas, spending a lot of time in nature. I am a mother of two young adults - they inspire, teach and remind me to be in the moment. Somewhere along the line I created my own systems to have an art practice while parenting and working full time.

I love to laugh and make things, and help people on their journey however I can. Most days, I have a twinkle in my eyes.

a few words about my work

I create imagery that is rooted in the natural world and summoned from my imagination rather than what is seen. It is a celebration of beauty and a reminder of our responsibility as a species with the gift of forethought. Works are informed by concepts of stewardship, activism, playfulness, and awe. I tell stories through textures, visual poetry, forms and colors, symbols and sometimes humor.

art practice

I make expressive, intricate drawings and collages using a variety of media on paper and canvas: acrylics, gouache, graphite, Austin tap water, magazines, encyclopedias, scraps, ink and secret tools.

Deep Water

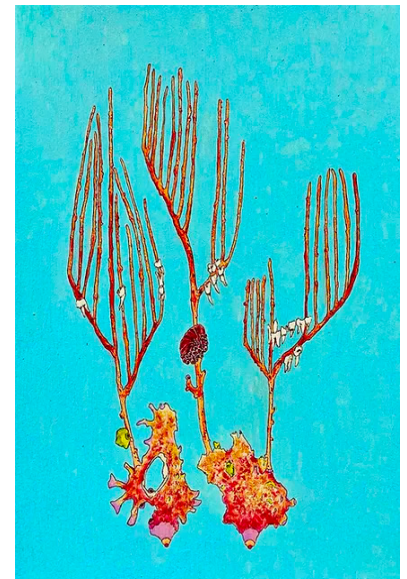

Humans are deeply connected with the earth - but we forget. These works are inspired by the aftermath of the Deepwater Horizon explosion in the Gulf of Mexico. The teeth are symbols of humanity, a shared interconnectedness - they also embody our locust-like hunger to devour. A celebration of the ocean and its rhythms but also a quiet reminder of our human footprint.

Habitats

2D ikebana arrangements combined with organisms - ghostly fishing lure “people” or non-thinking and confused masses. Flowering plants and seeds symbolize shared space, the habitat. Singed marks imply a fire has begun, a call for transformation.

Complex networks in nature and those made by humans. Animals trapped in these networks symbolize the pitfalls we set for ourselves. And then there are things that you want to reach out and touch, others better to avoid.

Green Dress

You've heard of the little black dress - an essential "can't-go-wrong" wardrobe staple, But what about the green dress? It's far more subversive and intriguing. In this series, green dress is a common canvas to explore women's prescriptive roles in the workplace and home.
